- (b) where during or throughout his pensionable service otherwise than under this Government he had had an opportunity of contributing to a statutory widows' and orphans' pensions scheme, shall be increased by an amount equal to the difference between the basic pension for which he would have been eligible if his total pensionable service had been wholly under this Government and paragraph (a) of this section had applied to him, and the basic pension for which he would have been eligible if his total pensionable service, excluding any period or periods during which he had no opportunity of contributing to a statutory widows' and orphans' pensions scheme, had been wholly under this Government and paragraph (a) of this section were left out of account.

the Governor-General may, if he thinks fit, grant or regrant the pension as from that date.

(2) Subject to the provisions of subsection (1) of this section a widow's pension may be paid in respect of the whole period from the death of the deceased to the death of the widow.

Provided that where—

- (ii) the Governor-General is satisfied at a subsequent date that the marriage or cohabitation has come to an end or that there are compassionate grounds for permitting the pension to enure for her benefit notwithstanding the marriage, the Governor-General may, if he thinks fit, grant the pension, or as the case may be, permit the pension to enure for her benefit, as from that date;

(4) Notwithstanding anything in the preceding provisions of this section, where the deceased leaves a widow and no widow's pension is granted to her or, if one is granted to her, it ceases to be paid before her death, no children's pension shall be payable as respects any period comprised within the lifetime of the widow or within the time in respect of which no widow's pension is payable, as the case may be, unless the Governor-General specially directs that such a pension shall be so payable, but if the Governor-General does specially so direct, he may if he thinks fit, further direct that subsection (2) of this section shall apply as respects any such period notwithstanding that the widow is alive.

(5) (a) Where the annual rate of a children's pension is less than two hundred and forty dollars per annum, the Governor-General may, on the application of any person made within three months next following the grant of the pension, or within such extended period as the Governor-General may allow, commute the pension by paying to such person or persons as he thinks fit, a sum which in the opinion of the Governor-General, is actuarially equivalent, at the date of the payment, to the value of the pension.

(2) In any case where an officer has been absent from the Territory in which he is normally stationed for the whole or a substantial portion of the period within which he is required to elect under subsection (1) of this section whether or not to make contributions under this section, or in any other case where similar exceptional circumstances exist, the Governor-General may extend the time within which such an election is required to be made.

(3) Contributions by an officer under this section—

(a) shall be equal to two per centum of the amount of pensionable emoluments from time to time payable to him;

(b) shall be payable in respect of his pensionable emoluments—

✓ (i) from the date as from which his election to pay contributions becomes effective until he ceases to be a public officer under this Government; and

- (c) has not already elected under either paragraph (a) or (b) of subsection (1) of this section to make contributions under this section, an election shall be effective as from the first day of the month in which he marries.

(5) Contributions under this section are in this Act referred to as periodical contributions.

14. (1) If—

- (a) when a person who has made periodical contributions ceases to be a public officer, it appears that he has had no wife throughout the period commencing with the date of his first appointment as a public officer in the service of this Government and terminating on the date when he ceases to be a public officer; or the whole of his periodical contributions shall be returned to him or to his legal personal representative.

(2) Where a person who has made periodical contributions ceases to be a public officer in such circumstances that he is eligible only for the grant of a gratuity, then, unless he retired from the public service in the circumstances defined in paragraph (e) of section 6 of the Pensions Act, he may elect that the whole of his periodical contributions may be returned to him in return for the surrender of such benefits as might enure under this Act to his widow and his or her children.

(3) If a person who has made periodical contributions has no wife when he ceases to be a public officer, there shall be returned to him or to his legal personal representative such of those contributions, beginning with the last of them, as is necessary to secure that the period in respect of which such contributions have been paid by him without being returned does not extend beyond the date on which he last had a wife.

(4) Where any contributions are returned under this section, they may be returned with an addition of one-and-a-quarter per cent of the aggregate amount of the returned contributions for each year and part of a year of service in respect of which the contributions were made:

Provided that the Governor-General may authorise the addition payable under this subsection to be at such increased rate as he may from time to time determine.

Contri-

reduction in pension or gratuity.

15. (1) Subject to the provisions of this Act, where a pension or gratuity under the Pensions Act becomes payable to or in respect of a public officer to whom this Act applies, payment shall be made in respect of the contributions due from him under this Act, in the form of a reduction—

(a) in the gratuity, where one is payable, or

(b) where no such gratuity is payable, or the payment due under this section exceeds the gratuity, then to the extent of such excess, in any such pension payable.

(2) A payment shall not be made under this section where—

(a) the public officer has no wife when he ceases to be a public officer and has had no wife throughout the period commencing with the date of his first appointment as a public officer in the service of this Government and terminating on the date when he ceases to be a public officer; or

(b) being eligible under the provisions of subsection (2) of section 14 of this Act, the public officer elects to surrender such benefits as might enure under this Act to his widow and his or her children; or

(c) the number of relevant months as defined in subsection (4) of this section, is nil.

(3) (a) Where the payment by a public officer under this section takes the form of a reduction in the amount of the pension, it shall be made at an annual rate of two-twenty-fifths of the total amount of the contribution.

(b) Where the payment takes the form of a reduction in gratuity it shall be equal to the total amount of the contribution.

(c) For the purpose of this subsection—

“the total amount of the contribution” means the sum equal to one-twelfth of two per centum of the person’s annual pensionable emoluments when he ceased to be a public officer, multiplied by the number of relevant months as defined in subsection (4) of this section;

“annual pensionable emoluments” means the emoluments which would be taken for the purpose of computing the public officer's pension or gratuity in accordance with the provisions of regulation 18 of the Pensions Regulations.

(4) In this section, the expression "the number of relevant months" means—

- (a) if the public officer has a wife when he ceases to be a public officer, the number of completed months of pensionable service under this Government which he then has;
- (b) if the public officer has no wife when he ceases to be a public officer, the number of completed months of pensionable service under this Government which he had when he last had a wife before that date, reduced in each case by the number of months, if any, for which periodical contributions have been made by him and are not returnable.

(5) Where the payment due from a public officer under this Act takes the form of a reduction in his pension and that pension ceases under the provisions of either section 14, 15 or 16 of the Pensions Act, sums equivalent to those by which the pension would have been reduced had it not ceased, shall be deemed to have been paid on account of the payment due under this Act.

Lump sum contribution by existing officers.

16. (1) Where a public officer in the service of this Government at the date of the commencement of this Act, elects under the provisions of section 3 of this Act that this Act shall apply to him he may further elect at the same time to make a lump sum contribution equal to—

- (a) in the case of an officer to whom subsection (2) of section 3 of this Act does not apply, two percent of the total pensionable emoluments received by him during the period of his pensionable service under this Government prior to the commencement of this Act;

(b) in the case of an officer to whom subsection (2) of section 3 of this Act applies, one twelfth of two per cent of his annual pensionable emoluments, ascertained in accordance with regulation 18 of the Pensions Regulations at the date of his marriage, multiplied by the number of months of his pensionable service under this Government which he had on the first day of the month in which he marries.

(2) Where a public officer has made a lump sum contribution under the provisions of subsection (1) of this section he shall be deemed to have made periodical contributions for the period of his pensionable service taken into account in calculating the amount of such lump sum contribution.

17. Where a payment on account of contribution falls to be made under section 15 of this Act by or in respect of a public officer whose service includes service otherwise than under this Government, then—

(a) if such payment becomes due on his death while in the service of this Government, or on his retirement from the public service, the amount by which the pension or gratuity payable to or in respect of him under the Pensions Act, may be reduced under section 15 of this Act shall be limited to such an amount as shall bear the same proportion to the aggregate amount of the contributions which would fall to be made by or in respect of him under section 15 of this Act had his service in the Group been wholly in the service of this Government as the aggregate amount of his pensionable emoluments during his service under this Government bears to the aggregate amount of his pensionable emoluments throughout his service in the Group:

Provided that for the purposes of this paragraph the aggregate amount of an officer's pensionable emoluments shall be calculated in accordance with paragraph (3) of regulation 9 of the Pensions Regulations:

- (b) if such payment becomes due on the death of the officer while he is in other public service, no pension shall be payable to his widow or to any children of his or hers under the provisions of this Act unless a sum equal to the amount by which, if he had died in the service of this Government, the gratuity payable in respect of him would have been reduced under the provisions of the preceding paragraph is paid to the Accountant General within six months next following his death or within such extended period as the Governor-General may allow.

Contributions payable in respect of re-employed pensioner.

18. Where a public officer, whose pension has been suspended under section 11 of the Pensions Act, or whose earlier public service is taken into account in accordance with the provisions of regulation 15(2) (b) of the Pensions Regulations, has had a reduction made in the pension or gratuity granted to him under that Act in accordance with the provisions of section 15 of this Act he shall—

- (a) if such reduction had been made from the aforesaid gratuity, be deemed to have made periodical contributions in respect of the period of his pensionable service taken into account in calculating the amount of such reduction;
- (b) if such reduction had been made from the aforesaid pension, be deemed to have made periodical contributions in respect of that proportion, not exceeding the whole, of his pensionable service taken into account in calculating the amount of such reduction as the actual amount of the contribution paid by way of reduction in pension bears to the total amount of the contribution used in determining the amount of the reduction.

19. (1) Every public officer to whom this Act applies shall— Information to be furnished.

- (a) within three months of the date of his first appointment to be a public officer in the service of this Government or of the date of the commencement of this Act, whichever is the later, notify to the Accountant General, in writing, if he is married or a widower with children who are in their period of childhood and full-time education, the dates of his marriage and the births of his and his wife's children;
