All issues and determinations of permits shall be published in the Royal Gazette.

effect of certificate of loss.

14. The Inspector of Mines, if he is satisfied that the digging operations complained of have unduly depleted any asphalt-bearing land, shall issue a certificate to that effect, notice of which shall be given to the parties in difference, and which certificate shall contain a statement of the quantity of material which has been lost to the complaining owner by such undue depletion, and of the properties into which it has so passed. The certificate when issued shall have the same effect as an award by an arbitrator upon a submission, in which the allegation that the land claimed by the complaining owner is asphalt-bearing land, the allegation that the disturbance complained of was caused by the operations of the owner complained against or his agent and the quantity of the material lost to the complaining owner were matters in question between the parties, and on these points the certificate, when granted, shall be final and conclusive between the parties. The complaining owner in whose favour such a certificate is granted shall be entitled, subject to establishing his title to the land specified in the certificate as the land from which the material has been caused to pass, to recover a quantity of good merchantable asphalt equal to the quantity of material so certified, to be delivered to him free of cost at such place at La Brea within reasonable distance of the excavation as the Inspector, Court, or a Judge may direct, or he may at his option recover payment for the same at the current price of asphalt at La Brea. Provided nevertheless that the Court may order the payment of damages, in respect of the disturbance complained of instead of the restitution of Asphalt in kind. If the complaining owner recovers under any such certificate a sum of not less than £5 or asphalt to the value of £5 at the least, he shall be entitled to recover in addition thereto the further sum of £5 by way of reimbursement in respect of stamps, unless an order to deprive him thereof is specially made by the Court. But in any other case he shall not recover anything in respect of the stamps affixed to his application as aforesaid.

15. No injunction shall be hereafter granted nor any Injunctions. proceedings had upon any injunction heretofore granted by the Supreme Court to restrain any digging or removal of asphalt from land, which digging or removal is carried on by virtue of a permit, unless it is proved that the digging has been conducted in contravention of the said permit.

(d.) The owner or his agent may at any time give notice of his desire that the bond should be discharged. From the date of such notice any permit held by virtue of such bond shall lapse, and thirty days thereafter the bond may be discharged, and shall be so discharged unless complaint shall have been laid of loss of asphalt or other constituent of the soil in respect of any digging by virtue of such permit.

If any such complaint shall have been laid, the bond shall remain in force until the complaint in question shall have been decided.

To secure the observance of the limit thus set the owner or his agent shall, once a week, or from time to time when required, submit to the Inspector of Mines a properly verified list or account of material removed from the excavation.

The removal of any substantial excess of material beyond the quantity permitted shall be deemed a breach of these regulations.

The Inspector of Mines shall have power to determine in every case what excess amounts to a substantial excess within the meaning of this regulation.

5. The Inspector of Mines, if he thinks fit, shall have power to add to the permit the angle at which the gradient through superincumbent soil is to be maintained. If no angle is mentioned, the digger may dig at any angle, through the superincumbent soil.

6. In cutting through asphalt a gradient shall be maintained at such angle as specified in the permit and shall in no case be steeper than 85° to the horizontal. The depth of every excavation shall be such as may be prescribed in the permit.
